Introducing the team

In the next five days, you will meet four public servants who work at various government departments across South Africa. Dora and Daniel are here to help you. Each day they will share their experiences with you to help you to understand how the public service operates and how to deal with challenges in your new workplace.

Daniel Duminy

Good day, I am Daniel Duminy. I'm 30 years old. My life-partner and friends tell me I am a nerd because my nose is always in a book. I hail from Bethlehem, a small town in the Free State. I lived here for my entire life, except for the two years I studied in Bloemfontein towards my Diploma in Information Management. Back then, I did not complete my studies. I lost the use of my legs in a car accident a few years back and am wheelchair bound. But I don't let this hold me back! Earlier this year, I registered to finish my diploma part-time. During this period, an opportunity as a library assistant came about at the local library. Now I can read every day! I am on level four.

Dorothy Khechane

Hi, I am Dorothy Khechane, but you can call me Dora. I live in Polokwane, Limpopo. I am 27 years old. I recently completed my Higher Certificate in Social Auxiliary Work through UNISA and have taken up a job at the Department of Social Development. I enjoy working with people and get a thrill when I have to do outreach to communities and families in particular. I work closely with the social worker and help her to do various tasks, including reuniting children with their families and helping children in conflict with the law. This is my third month in the department, and I have just completed my probation. I am on level five.
